

Structure of History

Yoshiro Kamitake

Abstract

The dialectical relation between the Geschichte als Tatsache and the Geschichte als Sein must create a transcendental frame of reference consisted of factors such as motion, continuum and infinitude. The structure of history can be compiled by essential features common to these metacategories, which should have the same expressional function as Existenzialen, but logically operate the opposite direction. In this paper a metacategorical structure of Geschichte is hypothetically constructed with metamathematical modelling to depict formally its conceptual genealogy.