

A Study on the Business of Automobile Manufacturing Company in Manchuria [Manshu Jidosha Seizo K.K.] During the Asian Pacific War

Takao Sogo

Manshu Jidosha Seizo K.K. (Automobile Manufacturing Company) was established in 1939, to manufacture automobile in Manchuria on the basis of Japan's National Policy. According to the analysis of the business report, especially the Balance sheet of the company, Manshu Jidosha Seizo K.K. was financially dependent on an investment from the national policy investment company [Manshu Jukogyo Kaihatsu K.K] , such as paid-up capital and loan. But even if it was financially supported by the National policy investment company, it was annually calculating the loss, failing to keep on pursuing its profit as a commercial company.

Formerly, the investment on heavy industry in Manchuria on the basis of Japan's National Policy, for example automobile and airplane, was considered a failure. But, in terms of the company business, the business of Manshu Jidosha Seizo K.K. was financially supported by Japan's National Policy, had continued until the end of World War II.